

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A disk apparatus of this invention includes a defect detection unit configured to detect a defect of a disk, a setting unit configured to set an actual recording area, where information can actually be recorded, of all recording areas of the disk on the basis of the defect detection result by the defect detection unit, and a recording unit configured to record user information in the actual recording area set by the setting unit.